Events

At the Paul Scherrer Institute events are held both for the scientific community as well as for the general public.

Hub of knowledge

The international scientific community meets for exchange of academic knowledge at seminars, conferences, congresses, sessions, workshops and symposia. The Paul Scherrer Institute hosts every year numerous scientific events and is thus a meeting place for the exchange of knowledge by researchers from around the world.

Excellence on display

At various events the PSI invites the interested general public to participate in its research. Theme days, open house days or the lecture series “Forschung live erleben” are occasions around the year to get informed about research results gained at PSI.
