What is Mentoring?

Introduction:: What is Mentoring?

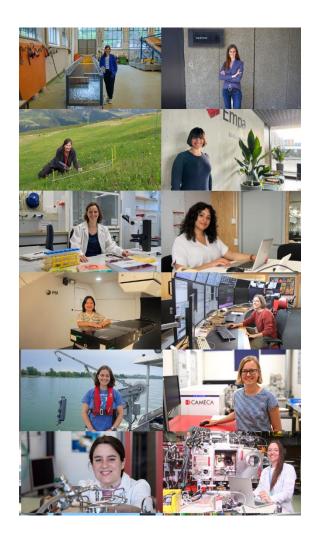

Origin: In Greek mythology, a fatherly friend of Odysseus with the name "Mentor" was the educator of his son Telemachos.

Meaning "Mentoring" in personnel development:

A guidance provided by an experienced person (mentor) who passes on the knowledge and experience to a person who is not as experienced in this field (mentee), arranges contacts and opens doors. The aim is to support the professional and personal development of the mentee.

Introduction:: What needs to be considered?

- Mentoring ito promote equal opportunities.s an established measure
- The mentoring relationship is based on trust and reciprocity.
- There is no competition with the regular support structures (e.g. doctoral mother/father, manager).
- There should be no relationship of dependence between the mentee and the mentor.

Einführung:: Unterschied zu Coaching

Both: Career development as a goal

Mentoring

- Development-orientated, relationship in the foreground
- Exchange of personal experiences
- Jointly designed learning relationship

Coaching

- Goal-/performance-orientated
- Structured support process
- Guided by professional coaches
